O'Higgins, Harvey Jerrold, 1876– Julie Cane; illus. by Thomas Fogarty. Harper $2

A psychological study of the influences that molded the character of Julie Cane. It is not in Julie, however, that interest centers, but in her father. It is the character of the shy, unsuccessful grocer, who read Darwin, Flammarion, and Nick Carter, who thought straight, and taught his little daughter never to be "scared of anybody or anything" that makes the story distinctive.

8962 24–22001

Oliphant, Mrs. Margaret Oliphant (Wilson) 1828–1897. Salem chapel. (Everyman's library) Dent; Dutton 80c

The Carlingford novels stand out, like Trollope's Barchester series, high above her very unequal and numerous tales. This is the first of the set, in which the hero is a clever and ambitious student just arrived from college as minister of the parish. His advanced views end almost in a schism, and the history of his struggle with the congregation is fertile in comedy. At the same time a melodramatic plot is developing. The story is rich in character drawing. There are four other titles in the delightful series of which only two are now available: The rector; and The doctor's family (Blackwood. 1s6d) Miss Marjoribanks (Collins. Illustrated pocket classics. 2s).

Proust, Marcel, 1871–1922. Remembrance o things past; tr. by C. K. Scott-Moncrieff 6v. v.1-2 Holt $5; v.3-4 Seltzer $ v.5-6 Seltzer $

The first part of this masterpiece of auto biographic writing, Swann's way, opens with th narrator, in a state between waking and sleeping recalling the sequence of impressions of childhood Unobtrusively, the outstanding figure of the rest o the narrative, Swann, is introduced, and his lov story unfolded with sympathetic subtlety. The sec ond part, Within a budding grove, invokes golde memories of adolescence; while the third, Th Guermantes way, is devoted to a great aristocrati family, no less absorbing a study to Proust thar the middle class people of the first part. The in exhaustible richness of meticulous detail and the constantly reminiscent style which is forever re ferring in a late volume to something which hap pened in the first, makes difficult reading for those who wish to follow a bold plot; but the infinite delicacy of thought and keen psychological insight afford unceasing enjoyment to the analytically minded.

A leisurely autobiography of the modest and lovable hero, describing his boyhood in the backwoods of Ohio, service in the Mexican War, and his love story.

9259 23–6421

Watts-Dunton, Theodore, 1832–1914. Aylwin. (World's classics) Oxford 2s

The idea of the plot is similar to that of his poem "The coming of love,"—love at war with death. The gipsy heroine is drawn from life and the whole story has an autobiographical cast. Several famous men, among them Rossetti and William Morris, appear as characters.

9260 (7–3074)

Webster, Jean, 1876–1916. Daddy-Long-Legs. Century $1.50

The bright, whimsical letters written by Judy Abbott to the unknown benefactor who had rescued her from an orphanage and sent her to college.

9261 15–15243

—— Dear enemy. Century $2

A continuation of Daddy-Long-Legs telling of the transformation in the orphan asylum under the administration of Judy's friend, Sally. Also in the form of letters.

9262 15–26656

Wells, Herbert George, 1866– Ann Veronica, a modern love story. Harper $2.50

The heroine is the type of young girl rebel of the early part of the century. She leaves home to study biology, takes part in the suffrage movement, and accepts love without marriage, as steps in her struggle for freedom.

9263 9–28269

—— Christina Alberta's father. Macmillan $2.50

A study of the post-war girl—still rebellious, still demanding freedom, and achieving it. Also a characterization of a man of the Mr. Polly type which the author draws so successfully.

9264 25–17932

—— History of Mr. Polly. Duffield $2

The story of a lower middle-class Englishman painfully trying to adjust himself to his sordid, misfit career of a small tradesman's clerk, and of his sudden strike for freedom when he disappears from his habitual surroundings and flees to the country. The wit, wisdom and humor of this inimitable character study is a literary delight of rare quality.

9265 10–737

—— Joan and Peter. Macmillan $2.50

The story deals with the war generation, implying, as one of the reasons of the great upheaval, the muddle-headedness of educational methods. Judgment on the schools is passed, emphatically but unconsciously, by the two children and their friends, whose utter disregard for all the condescending methods used to adapt the acquiring of knowledge to the capacity of the infant mind, provides an inimitably delicious satire on educational institutions.

9266 18–17913

Wells, Herbert George, 1866– Kipps, the story of a simple soul. Scribner $2

A merciless analysis of the social aspirations, mishaps and love affairs of a young draper's assistant whose complete lack of adaptability unfits him for his sudden rise to affluence.

9267 24–27744

—— Marriage. Duffield $2.50

A study of the problem as presented by the marriage of a young English scientist, whose pursuit of knowledge is an unconscious religion, and a most attractive young girl who is extravagant financially as well as emotionally.

9268 12–21729

—— Mr. Britling sees it through. Macmillan $2.50

An analysis of the effect of the first two years of the war on the emotional and intellectual life of Mr. Britling, a man of letters, who when the war opens is living quietly and happily in his country home. The experiences of this man bring us nearer to the ideas and imaginative sympathies of the author than any other of his works. As a novel of the war it is a remarkable commentary on those sorrows, pains and consternations which have left the deepest marks on the memories of Englishmen.

9269 17–22994

—— New Machiavelli. Duffield $2.50

In the form of an autobiography, the self analysis of a statesman, whose brilliant public career has been ruined by a private scandal, is here given. The theory which the author attempts to develop is that there is progressive growth of collective mind behind the interplay of individual lives.

9270 20–16468

—— Tono-Bungay. Duffield $2.50

The story of a fortune that comes to a small-town chemist through the invention and launching of a patent medicine. The "conqueror" is simply a commonplace man with an instinct for gauging the folly and trading upon the gullibility of a nation susceptible, in the extreme, to advertising frauds.

9271 24–14933

—— Twelve stories and a dream. Scribner $2

Contents: Filmer; The magic shop; The valley of spiders; The truth about Pyecraft; Mr. Skelmersdale in fairyland; The story of the inexperienced ghost; Jimmy Goggles the god; The new accelerator; Mr. Ledbetter's vacation; The stolen body; Mr. Brisher's treasure; Miss Winchelsea's heart; A dream of Armageddon.

9272 24–27882

—— War of the worlds. Harper $2.50

One of his earlier imaginary scientific romances picturing the Martians in an attack on England.

9273 24–22215

West, Rebecca. The judge. Doran $2.50

A young girl, Ellen Melville, working her way in Edinburgh, meets and loves the picturesque Richard Yaverland. When the scene changes to Sussex, where they go to live with Richard's mother, Ellen becomes drawn into a domestic tragedy in which the mother's past and Richard's attachment to her, spin the plot. The tone is intense throughout, the first part lyrical, the last, an inexorable Greek tragedy.

9274 22–26985

—— Return of the soldier. Doran

Using the instance of a shell-shocked soldier, author works out with great skill a situation invo ing one of the accepted Freudian theories. A yo Englishman forgets the fifteen years before the w unconsciously repudiating his wife and seek refuge in the homely realities represented by first love.

9275 (18–651

9285 25–8793

—— Old New York. 4v. Appleton $1.25 each; $5 set

In four short novels, each complete in itself, four sets of characters move against a background of four decades of New York social life, 1840-1870. Each of the stories depicts a tragedy which has its origin in the social bondage and in the deadly pressure of convention. Together the volumes form a social history of the period, each picturing clearly the manners, customs and fashions of the day. The titles are False dawn; The old maid; The spark; New Year's day.

9286 24–11469 to 24–11472
